"The recent incursion that has been made "The recent incursion that his been made into the State of Virginia, although disaavowed and repudiated—as I have no doubt it honestly and conscientiously is—by most if not all of the gentlemen on that side of the House, is, in my judgment, the necessary, logical, inevitable sequence of your principles and your doctrines."

"When the gentleman from Tonnesses, (Mr. Nelson,) the other day in a speech in which, at one bound, he sprang into the front rank of debates of this House, colo-gized the Know Nothing party, it was received with timultuous applause by the Re-publicans; thus publicly testifying to their ancient connection with the order. The occasion was not omitted in which to manifest the depth and intensity of their cen-tempt and scorn for foreigners and Roman Catholies, while, I believe, they have no repulsion for the black race."

"The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Corwin) LINEN GOODS in his very adroit speech intended to mollify the hostility of the South towards Black Republicanism, attempted to allay our fears and quiet our apprehensions, from the fact that there was no more territory to be acted upon by this session of Congress. Did it not occur to the very distinguished gentle-man to inquire then wherefore the necessity of the Republican organization, which came into existence distinctly, avowedly and solely for the purpose of the prevention of slavery in the territories? If you do not intend to with slavery, and if there be no question upon which your doctrines can be practically applied, dissolve your organization and put it out of your power to do us injury."

"Mr. Seward says that while we leave slavery to the States were it exists—just the sentiments expressed by the gentles man from Ohio (Mr. Sherman) the other day—we should inflexibly direct the policy of the Federal Government so as to circum-scribe its limits. For what? To secure its ultimate extinction. That is the object, by pascure the abolition of slavery. You will not deny that this is the purpose and effect of this agitation.

[Note by THE EDITOR.—And no one did deny it. And when Senator Clay made the same charge in the Senate on Tuesday last no one but Collamer answered, and he ad mitted it by implication. So the Regublis.
